REINSTATEMENT OF GIRLS MAY PREVENT STRIKE

(By Associated Press)
Atlanta, Ga., June 2.—What union leaders asserted would prove to be a nation wide strike of telephone and telegraph employees appeared early today to hinge on the question of reinstatement of less than a dozen telephone girls here. The strike was scheduled to go into effect at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The operatives were discharged for joining the Commercial Telegraphers Union of America, according to their leaders, while the company asserted that inefficiency and not union affiliation caused the dismissals. The company has referred the case to Postmaster General Burleson through the Government operating board in New York and Mr. Burleson has ordered an investigation.

MILLS STARTING UP AT NEW BEDFORD

(By Associated Press)
New Bedford, Mass., June 2.—Although most of the 30,000 cotton mill operatives who have been idle for two weeks because of a strike of engineers for a wage increase under a standardized scale, were still out today two of the mills, the Nashua and Nonquitt, opened their doors for such of the operatives as cared to report for work. Labor leaders announced today that a conference of the Textile Council, Central Labor Union and Building Trades Council would be held tonight with the view of recommending a general strike of all industries in a protest against the expected employment of out of town engineers from other places in place of the strikers. Workers at the Passaic Mills and the New Bedford Spinning Co., were notified today to return to work, the terms of the engineers having been agreed to.

PLASTERERS JOIN BOSTON STRIKE

(By Associated Press)
Boston, June 2.—More than 1000 union plasterers joined the carpenters and lathers in their demands for $1.00 an hour by striking today. About 4,000 building trades mechanics are now out. Announcement was made by the United Building Trades Council that any attempt to establish the "open shop" policy here would be opposed by between 30,000 and 35,000 mechanics.

CONGRESS TO SOLVE QUESTION

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 2.—Final and immediate solution of the Philippine question was asked of Congress in a memorial presented today by the Philippine Mission at a joint session of the Senate Committee on the Philippines and the House Committee on Insular Affairs. "It is for the best interest of both the United States and the Philippines," said the memorial "that the independence of the latter country be recognized and established at this time."

The Austrian Delegates Were Handed Their Peace Terms Today and They Have 15 Days to Reply--The Answer to Germany's Demand is a Flat Refusal

(By Associated Press)
Tottenham, Mass., June 2.—No trace has been secured of Capt. M. R. James British aviator, who left Tynningham Thursday morning. He was seen passing over New Marlboro, going in the direction of Canaan and Winsted, Conn. The machine also was reported to have flown over Platt Mountain at Winsted.

(By Associated Press)
Paris, June 2.—The terms of peace were presented to the Austrians today with the problem of the Adriatic claims of Italy unsolved. The council of four held a brief meeting before going to St. Germain this morning. Premier Orlando and Col. House were present and the Adriatic question was discussed.

St. Germain, June 2.—Austria today was given 15 days to reply to the terms of peace presented by the allied nations. M. Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, was the first prominent figure to arrive at the meeting at which the terms were presented. The entire peace treaty was not presented today and the 15 days stipulation therefore refers only to the portion handed them today. Secretary Lansing and Henry White were the first American representatives to arrive for the function. They were followed by Arthur J. Balfour, Premier Orlando of Italy and Premier Paderni of Poland. At 12:10 o'clock President Wilson had not arrived and the ceremony of presentation was somewhat delayed. The President, however, reached St. Germain at 12:14 o'clock. A puncture in the tire of his automobile held him up on the way. The Austrian representatives arrived at 12:22 o'clock entering the chamber by a rear entrance. They were attired in conventional morning dress. They were escorted in by an Italian officer. Immediately upon their arrival the session was formally opened by announcement of the head usher and Premier Clemenceau, president of the peace conference, began his address. He spoke for only three minutes. Premier Clemenceau spoke in French, his remarks were translated into English, then into Italian and then into German. The General Secretary of the peace conference presented the terms to the Austrians at 12:37 o'clock. Dr. K. Renner, the Austrian chancellor and head of the delegation then began an address in German which he concluded at 12:50 o'clock.

St. Germain, June 2.—Following is a summary of the conditions of peace as presented to the Austrian plenipotentiaries at St. Germain today. The conditions of peace of the allied and associated powers, with the exception of military reparations, financial and certain boundary clauses were handed to the Austrian plenipotentiaries at St. Germain today. Those clauses which are not yet ready for presentation will be delivered as soon as possible. The Austrian treaty follows exactly the same outline as the German and in many places is identical with it, except for the change in name. Certain specific clauses which applied only to Germany are, of course, omitted and certain new clauses included. Austria is left by the treaty a state of between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 people, inhabiting a territory of between 6,000 and 8,000 square miles. She is required to recognize the complete independence of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and the Serbian-Croatian-Slovene state and to cede other territories which previously in union with her composed the empire of Austria-Hungary with its population of over 50,000,000 people. Austria agrees to accept the league of nations covenant and the labor charter, to renounce all her extra-European rights, to demobilize her whole naval and aerial forces, to admit the right of trial by the allied and associated powers of her nationals guilty of violating the laws and customs of force and to accept detailed provisions similar to those of the German treaty as to economic relations and freedom of transit.

NO DATE SET FOR TELEGRAPH STRIKE

(By Associated Press)
Washington, June 2.—J. J. Kenen Kamp, President of the Commercial Telegraphers Union, stated here today that no date had been set for a nation wide telegraphers strike and that the threatened walkout in Atlanta was purely a local affair. Almost simultaneously with Mr. Kenen-Kamp's statement, Postmaster General Burleson announced that if telegraph operatives in Atlanta had been dismissed because of union affiliation they would be reinstated at once and that steps would be taken to discipline the responsible officials of the Southern Bell Telephone Co.

POPULAR ENTERTAINER PLEASES AUDIENCE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

C. B. Wallace of Waltham, Mass., appeared at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, presenting a most entertaining informal program. He gave pleasing monologues and character sketches in appropriate costume and received the well merited applause of the audience. He played the banjo and sang popular war songs and the audience joined in the chorus with a zest. The entertainer had no little ability as a ventriloquist. He created no little merriment by his jokes on some of the local Y. M. C. A. boys. Among the features of his program which especially pleased the audience was his playing of the banjo and Jewsharp at the same time, which he fastened together, and caused much applause. The entertainment was free to the public and was given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. war work council. Miss Marguerite G. Jenness presided at the piano, acting as accompanist during the evening.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE Class of Thirty Confirmed at St. John's Church.

Rev. Edward M. Parker, D. D., bishop of the Episcopal diocese, made his annual visitation to St. John's church on Sunday morning to administer the rite of confirmation. A large congregation was present at the impressive service and 30 persons were confirmed, the class numbering about half adults. The bishop preached an eloquent sermon taking his text from Acts 1:3. The processional cross which was presented the church on Sunday was blessed by the bishop. The surpliced choir rendered special music at the morning service and Thurston D. Smart rendered the vocal solo, "Ave Verum." The floral arrangements of the altar were handsomely arranged and the entire service was impressive and beautiful.

It will constitute a refusal of the German proposals. The Germans, the paper adds, will be told they must either accept or refuse the allied conditions before June 26th.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS CARNIVAL

Durham, June 2.—The Durham pageant, a historical sketch, was given by a cast of 475 before 6000 persons Saturday afternoon. The pageant was on the bank of the Oyster River, where in 1640 the first settlers planted a colony.

The pageant opened when Parson Bush, as a representative of the colony, attempted a peace treaty with the Indians. Failing, he and his fellow envoys returned to the colony. An attack by the Indians was repulsed by a flotilla from Portsmouth. The next episode showed the founding of Durham's first church. Assembling on the bank of the river, the men of the colony armed and watching for Indians, formed a large square and stalked out the ground.

The Revolutionary War days were shown in the last episode when the king's messenger was hunted and driven away after having read a proclamation demanding the gunpowder concealed in the colony. He given up to the King's agent. As he departed, Paul Revere, making a detour from Portsmouth, brought news of a boat approaching with a cargo of powder. The boat is unloaded and the confidant hastily concealed. At the close of the episode Maj. Gen. Sullivan, an officer of the Continental Army and a Dur-

CORPORAL BUTLER SETS THINGS RIGHT

Corporal Franklin B. Butler, a member of Co. D, 301st Engineers, A. E. F., and now in the army of occupation in Germany in a letter to the Portsmouth Herald writes that he thinks some of the Yankee boys who are now serving on the Rhine are not getting a square deal from the folks at home.

Corporal Butler writes that the 301st Engineers have as clean a record as any outfit in the A. E. F. and many of them have families in the states. He writes that our soldiers have to guard the Rhine and why do some people at home make light of this fact, because the 7th Division, which went over with the 301st Engineers did not come back with them.

Corporal Butler writes that he has a wife and two children in Portsmouth and hopes that the Herald will set this idea right before the people of Portsmouth about the reason they are still occupying the Rhine.

FORMER EMPRESS MEETS ELDEST SON.

Amerongen, Thursday.
The former German Empress returned to Amerongen castle late last evening, after meeting her eldest son, Frederick William, at Amersfort, for the first time in two years. Mother and son went to the meeting place by automobile from Amerongen and Wieringen, respectively.

On the outskirts of Amersfort the automobiles were met by Gen. Wrangel of the Dutch army. The former Empress and her son had lunch with Gen. Wrangel, Secretary-General King of the Dutch cabinet, Burgomaster Porchboom of Wieringen and several others.

After luncheon the former Empress was alone with Frederick William for several hours. The inhabitants of Amersfort were not aware of the presence of the visitors nor the public of Amerongen that she would leave the castle.

The day was a national holiday in Holland, it being the religious festival of Ascension day. The former German Emperor abstained from his usual occupation of sawing logs and attended services in the chapel at the castle, at which the Rev. Brother Weiss, a Moravian clergyman of Zeist, preached.

AUSTRIANS WILL KNOW THE PRICE OF PEACE TODAY

(By Associated Press)

The long awaited presentation to the Austrians of the terms on which they can have peace with the entente and Associated governments, will take place on Monday at St. Germain.

The Austrians will learn what they will have to do in a military and political way and how their borders will be drawn for them. The indemnity and reparations clauses will not be made known at this time but will be given them some time later.

Meanwhile the commission of the Allies are going over the German counter proposals to the Allied peace terms, to report as soon as possible and probably an answer to them will be made Germany some time this week. Sunday the Council of Four were inactive awaiting the report of the commission.

The head of the German delegation continues to assert that the allied and associated government terms can not be accepted by the Germans as they are present framed. Whether the allies will make any concessions remains to be seen about by their answer but the general impression is that they will not. German troops in Lorraine and Lithuania are reported to have been ordered to withdraw to new lines laid down by the Allied command.

Washington, June 1.—The German authorities realize that they must make sacrifices to make peace, but are convinced that the terms are more than they can bear. In a note to Premier Clemenceau, the delegation says up the attitude of the German nations. The note was received last Thursday and made public today. The Germans in no place refuses to sign the treaty but in behalf of the German nation protests against the injustice of the terms.

SOLDIERS FAVOR WINES AND BEER

Washington, June 2.—Representative James Gulliver of Massachusetts, author of the bill to repeal war-time prohibition as affecting wines and beer, in accordance with President Wilson's recommendations on that subject, Sunday expressed the opinion that the great body of returning soldiers favored the repeal and that not one soldier in 10,000 was for prohibition.

"What the returning soldier has to say will determine the action of Congress on the President's request for the repeal of war-time prohibition affecting light wines and beer," said Mr. Gulliver. "As fast as the troops are landed here they are being heard from," he said, "and already the effect of this sentiment is noted here."

"I have seen the statement made that it was a dry army which defeated the Hun," he added. "The faithful friends of prohibition have not hesitated to misrepresent the facts in order to prove their case. Every one knows that our boys in France were given light wines and beer. It is quite true that some busybodies tried to deprive them of even this light indulgence, but as such an order would have meant changing the laws and customs of France, they did not get very far."

"Father Duffy, the beloved priest of the Rainbow division, who went into the trenches with the troops, while the faithful prohibitionists, sitting in swivel chairs and drawing fat salaries, were trying to take wine away from the boys, has this to say:

"There was very little drinking among the men, and what there was did them no harm; it did them good. When they came out of the trenches, dirty and muddy and grumpy, I thought many times the money of the trustees' fund could have been put to no better use than in rolling a keg of wine down every company's street."

"Our own troops in the Massachusetts division are overwhelmingly opposed to prohibition of light wines and beers. This is not guesswork; I know whereof I speak. Between 11,000 and 12,000 of them have signed a petition to the Massachusetts Legislature saying that the national prohibition amendment was put over without considering them and asking the Legislature to legalize the sale of 1 per cent beer."

"Of all those 12,000 soldiers, then in Camp Devens, only one man refused to sign. One man out of 12,000—think of that!"

"The chief difficulty that the circulators of the petition experienced was in preventing men outside of Massachusetts from signing. In this they were not altogether successful. About 250 men from other New England states and from New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Minnesota, New Jersey, Tennessee, Virginia, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Florida—yes, even from the arid and bone-dry state of Kansas—signed the petition."

SUNSET LEAGUE OPEN THIS EVENING

The Sunset League base ball season opens this evening at the Playgrounds. The opening game will be between the Navy Yard and the Atlantic teams and it looks like a good opener. The games this year will be five innings and begin at 6.30 and should be over a little after seven o'clock. There is time enough for more innings in case of a tie, but last year proved that the fans want only five innings. The league this year contains two new teams, the Navy Yard children and the receiving ship Southern team.

Why You Should Buy Coal Now

The price of coal is 75 per cent determined by wages. The wage agreement at the mines continues until April 1, 1920. The Fuel Administration reports that 35 per cent of the mines cannot make any money at the present mine prices. In view of this, how can coal be cheaper this year?

WE ADVISE YOU TO PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW FOR COAL FOR NEXT WINTER.

The Promotion of Elder Bruce.

New Hampshire, which is frequently called upon to supply men and women for responsible positions in other states, has now contributed a Shaker elder to the Central Bishopric of the United States. This man is Elder Arthur Bruce of the East Canterbury community of Shakers, and he will be one of the four bishops forming the Central Bishopric. He will succeed Elder Joseph Holden of West Pittsfield, Mass., and will become a member of the Mt. Lebanon community at New Lebanon, N. Y.

Elder Bruce is 50 years old and has been for some time the head of the Shaker community at East Canterbury, where he is known as an able administrator and financier. In his new position he will find opportunity for the full play of his powers, for business affairs of large scope and importance are managed by the ministry. In the earlier days the ministry was regarded as practically the spiritual head of the Shaker sect, but of late years temporal affairs have taken more of its attention, owing to the diminishing number of members of the faith. The ministry has supervision and advisory power over the twelve Shaker colonies in the United States, two of which are located in this state, two in Massachusetts, two in Maine, two in New York and one each in Connecticut, Kentucky, Florida and Ohio.

The Shakers are not as strong as they were formerly, their numbers having been steadily diminishing for some years. Their mode of life, never made a wide appeal, and in this materialistic age there are fewer and fewer who choose to cast in their lot with the Shakers and live their simple and quiet life. The rule of celibacy precludes natural increase and with the gradual falling off of recruits from the "world" the membership has waned until numerous communities have passed out of existence, as all appear destined to do in the course of time.

But there is much of good to be said of the Shakers. They have been known since the founding of the order as honest, industrious and upright people, clean in their lives and habits and strictly honorable in all their dealings. Their mode of life is their own and their form of worship is peculiar, but that they are genuine Christian people will not be disputed by any who have ever known them or had dealings with them. With them cleanliness is indeed next to godliness. This applies not only to their persons and their lives, but to their homes, their farms and their workshops. Every Shaker community is a model of neatness and tidiness, outdoors and in, and the members of the order are quiet, God-fearing people whose lives are above reproach.

To the management of the affairs of the twelve remaining communities Elder Bruce will carry valuable qualities. He has proved his capacity as a business man and the Central Bishopric will find him a helpful and strengthening member of the body. He will be missed by the East Canterbury colony, which, however, will not be allowed to suffer by his going, and whose members will bid him Godspeed as he departs for a wider field of usefulness.

Success to the effort to form a post of the American Legion in this city! Portsmouth was well represented in practically all branches of the service and should be well represented in the body composed of veterans of the greatest war in all history.

Those in this region who imagine they know something about pitching quoits should listen to the voice from Atlantic Heights, which invites them to come forward and show their skill. Now is the accepted time, and the challengers should not be kept waiting.

Mexico retains its place on the trouble map. The Villa forces have proclaimed General Felipe Angeles president of the country and Villa himself secretary of war. No wonder a dispatch from Washington says the situation is regarded as "full of possibilities."

Biddeford and Saco, Me., are to join in a big "blowout" on the Fourth of July in honor of their returned service men, and it will be a great occasion for the people of the two towns. It is probable that there will be similar events in many other places throughout the country.

It would seem that Harry Hawker should be the last man in the world to criticize the plan for having life-savers distributed along the air route over the Atlantic. He is in a position to realize the value of succor in time of dire need.

The latest from Amerongen is to the effect that the attitude of the ex-Kaiser is unchanged. But the "attitude" of Wilhelm II. doesn't mean to the world what it did a few years ago. Other things have changed if that hasn't.

Thanks to the weather man, who appears to have turned over a new leaf. It was certainly time for a change, and the change is welcome.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Extremes of Spring

(From the Albany Journal)
 Extremes are meeting in the streets, in the form of last winter's plush hats and next summer's hats of straw.

Closing Belle Isle Straits

(From the Vancouver Sun)
 There is something very fascinating about the scheme outlined by Mr. J. T. Elliott for closing the straits of Belle Isle and thus rendering the climate of Eastern Canada much milder.

If it were accomplished, Montreal would be an open port for twelve months of the year, while the banks of the St. Lawrence would be in perpetual bloom. Canada would become a land towards which all the populations of the earth would turn longing eyes.

Mr. Elliott's memorandum gives only the barest outline of the countless benefits that would ensue. The increase of wealth and of human comfort would be beyond computation.

And there is no doubt that, as an engineering proposition, the straits could be blocked by a concrete wall capable of resisting any pressure to which it could possibly be subjected. There are plenty of capable engineers who would ask nothing better than to be given the job.

Of course, the matter is entirely in the speculative stage and is likely to remain there, at least for the present generation. But the time yet comes when the resources of Canada will be equal to the undertaking.

"Simply Awful"

(From the New York Tribune)
 German professors, vocal from the beginning of the war, have broken into fresh clamors over the terms of the treaty. "The document is simply awful," says one of them. The learned gentlemen are largely the same company as signed the famous manifesto defending Germany's invasion of Belgium.

The German professors lent themselves joyously to the task of making the German people believe what the Government wished them to believe. They lent themselves even more joyously to the task of spreading German propaganda outside of Germany. "The 'exchange' trick was in some ways one of the cleverest of them all. When this war broke out there were Germanized American professors ready to uphold the German cause. Doubtless the German professors believe that these represented American opinion. Many were the reproaches they addressed to us when it was discovered that they were mistaken.

Yet they went on living in a land of illusion. Up to the very last they were certain that Germany would win. They wrote addresses, pamphlets, volumes, to prove that anything else was inconceivable. They applied the doctrine that the end justifies the means in the most comprehensive sense. No atrocity was too horrible for them to defend. When it was obvious that Germany had been beaten they still clung to their ideal of the German shipman. Somehow the laws of nature would be broken in his case; somehow the crime would fall of punishment. For the last few months they have been prattling about a just peace, impatient unabashed, they have declared that Germany would not submit to humiliation, forgetting that it was no longer in Germany's power to choose. They have put their own interpretation upon the fourteen points and insisted it must be accepted.

Now after all these vain jugglings comes the relentless truth. Germany is to learn the full meaning of the old Italian proverb that "who breaks pays." No wonder they think it is "simply awful."

Why Build Now?

(From the Berkshire Eagle)
 The only hindrance to a genuine building movement in this country is the doubt as to whether building prices may not be lower in a year or two. Of course, this is something no man can forecast. There are arguments either way. But when it comes to house building for home purposes, the situation is somewhat different. The man who builds a house is not engaged in a merchandizing proposition. The house is something for himself and is permanent thing. It most instances, the house he builds will be his first and last venture of the kind.

A man can pay more for a house with justice to himself than for any other thing, because of the satisfaction of owning one and the process of paying for it begins with the first day; the quicker the great majority of people begin to pay on a house the quicker it will be paid for and the quicker they will begin to save. Assuming that a man pays $1000 for a house today and three years from now he can replace the proposition for, say $500 less—which is a liberal allowance for any reversal in building prices, the chances are that the average man who goes into the thing today, will have as much on the right side of the ledger as though he had waited, for the reason that, during the three years, through his personal work on his property, he will have saved more than the shrinkage to which must be added the satisfaction of living under his own roof all the time.

The Landing in Plymouth, 1919.

(From the Boston Transcript)
 Once the N-C-4 had reached Lisbon nothing remained in the category of human events, no matter how adverse or unfortunate, which could have diminished the glory of this plane and its crew and commander as "the first across the Atlantic." There were still laurels waiting, however, for this slouch of the air to add to its glory. There was, above all, the homey satisfaction of finishing every last part of the programme which the United States Navy had set itself to perform. This satisfaction, and this first conquest, the N-C-4 has established today by its successful completion of the last leg of its journey—that from Lisbon to Plymouth—in 6 hours and 59 minutes. So, in one year less than three hundred after the landing of the Mayflower in Plymouth on this side the Atlantic, a new landing in Plymouth—once vastly different in circumstances and conditions, the arrival in part of the first transatlantic aeroplane—takes its place in history.

From the point of view of aeronautics, the N-C-4's trip over the last leg of its course is not without particular importance. It makes the plane's performance just as much the more remarkable as a feat of endurance. The life of an aeroplane and its motors is not yet considered invulnerable. In fact it is still comparatively brief. Yet the engines of the N-C-4, after thousands of miles of straightaway flying, seem to have functioned as perfectly between Lisbon and Plymouth as though they had just set out on their maiden journey.

A Dixian Echo

(From the New York Herald)
 If anybody attempts to pull down the American flag from a German ship seized by the United States in the course of the war, shoot him on the spot!

(From the Springfield Republican)
 The self-perpetuating board of fellows, or trustees, in the American college and university has been recently concerned by President McKelejohn at Amherst. Now comes the resignation of a well-known and warmly esteemed fellow of Yale university because he disapproves of the system. The action of Rev. Edwin Pond Parker of Hartford in giving up life membership in the Yale corporation after twenty-four years' service has been something of a bombshell down Connecticut war. His own statement makes the issue clear:

I desire to go on record as expressing my conviction that the interests of both this corporation and those of Yale University require at least some further modification of the present status of that self-perpetuating group of fellows privileged by unlimited tenure of office, whereby this corporation equally in accordance with the ideas shall become constituted on a basis of merit and spirit of the day.

It seems to be believed that this decision of Dr. Parker's will have a far-reaching effect. At present a certain limited number of places on the corporation are filled by election, but the New Haven Journal-Courier expects to see "a demand on the part of the graduates that, after the expiration of the periods of service now being filled by life members, all members of the corporation shall be elected by the alumni." The Journal-Courier apparently fears that the present corporation is inclined to tolerate a "commercialized view of the mission of Yale." Clergymen do not now form a majority of the corporation, and, in the Journal-Courier's view, there is a greater objection to a self-perpetuating board dominated by lay members than to a board of clergymen, which at least had the sanction of tradition.

CHIEF PINKHAM OF SHATTUCK YARD RESIGNS

Chief Marshal Pinkham, perhaps the best known man at the Shattuck plant, if not the best liked, is severing his connection with the Shattuck yard June 1st.

Mr. Pinkham comes under the recent ruling which abolished the chief marshal's position in all shipyards of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. In the future both the fire and police departments are to be under one man. The successor to Mr. Pinkham at this plant will be Mr. Lamson D. Munroe of Portland, Maine.

There was no man at the Shattuck plant who had a more pleasing personality, a wider acquaintance, a better character than Mr. Pinkham. His devotion to his position was more than 100 per cent. Day and night found him always at his post. His position was one that required a great deal of tact and good judgment, but in no case was he ever found wanting. His record as an official and that of his department would compare most favorably with any man's in a similar capacity in any shipyard in the country.

To keep order in the yard during the war was an immense task. Men were working at top speed. Their nerves were at all times under a strong tension. Police guards might have disturbed the morale of the whole working force by just one ill-considered ruling. However, Chief Pinkham used a method all his own in handling the men. There was never even the slightest disorder. The guards made friends with the men. Co-operation existed at all times. Other yards had all manner of difficulties with arbitrary guards, but here Mr. Pinkham's force showed the effects of his skillful guidance.

Says Nothing Will Stop Him From Marrying the Boston Elevator Girl.

Henry B. Keyes the moneyed Cincinnati contractor, who is figuring in the limelight again in his latest declaration to marry an elevator girl of one of the Boston hotels, was in this city for a while on Saturday and incidentally met his old friend Billy McGinnis. After visiting the Keyes summer home at Housatonic, where he met another old friend the postmaster, who dined with him.

Keyes stated that while some of the many proposals from women all over the country looked good, he was going to make the elevator girl Mrs. Keyes regardless of the present situation in which his wealth is tied up by other members of the family. He left for New York where he claims he will meet a man from Chicago who is going to hand him over a good sum of money for three fine pictures. He will put in but little time at the summer home this season which he says will be occupied by his sisters. He will stick close to Boston for the present and devote all his love to the elevator girl.

PEACE GARDENS BEING PLOWED.

Plowing of the peace gardens in the Almshouse field is well under way, and, with favorable weather conditions, the ground should be ready for planting by the middle of the present week. The ground is being turned by a tractor, which means that the lots will be in the best possible shape when finished. As soon as plowing and harrowing are completed, the Chamber of Commerce office will notify the applicants and allotments will be made immediately thereafter.

COLONIAL.

"The Heart of Humanity," which is being presented at the Colonial theatre with Dorothy Phillips in the featured role, is an eight-reel Allen Holubar production which brings to the screen the inspiring story of woman's efforts to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded and orphaned and homeless during the days when France and Belgium were scarred and seared by sword and torch, and pounded and rocked by great German guns. It depicts the tenderness of the mother-heart in its conflict with the horrors of war. It pays a deserved tribute to womanhood as expressed in the Red Cross nurse. It presents a side of the war which we have been too prone to overlook.

The story of "The Heart of Humanity" was written by Olga Schott and Allen Holubar, adapted for the screen by Mr. Holubar and produced by him. It deals with the romance of Nanette, the little ward of Father Michael, parish priest of a community in the Canadian Northwest. While the parishioners are celebrating the marriage of Nanette and John, the oldest and bravest of the Widow Patricia's five sons, news comes of the declaration of war by Germany.

John answers the call to the colors, and with three of his brothers, enlists in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Eventually the fifth boy goes. John's letters to Nanette describe the sufferings endured by French and Belgian children so vividly that the mother-heart in Nanette is awakened and she determines to go abroad as a Red Cross nurse.

On the war-torn fields of Flanders the little wife meets her husband but once, after which she is captured by the Germans. They are reunited, however, after a series of thrilling scenes, which vividly portray the final halting of the great German drive and then the counter-attack which sent the Prussian hordes fleeing for refuge to their own border.

Through the entire production there runs a thread of heart interest that makes "The Heart of Humanity" the most absorbing love story of the great war yet filmed. The cast in support of Miss Phillips includes such well-known screen favorites as William Stowell, Pat O'Malley, Robert Anderson, Margaret Mann, Wall Whitman, George Bralwood, George Hackathorn and Gloria Joy.

Miss Una Whittier of Dover has returned to her home after a visit in this city as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. James H. Smith.

The friends of Mrs. Von Der Blith, nee Edna Lane, will be pleased to learn that the operation performed by Dr. Roger at the Portsmouth Hospital on June 2 was very successful.

NAVY YARD NOTES

Stanford on Board.

Capt. H. R. Stanford, public works officer at the Charlestown Navy Yard, has been appointed to a board to convene at Washington for the purpose of examining candidates of the reserve force in the civil engineering department for promotion to the rank of lieutenant commander. The board will begin its session on June 4.

Looking for Help.

Washington Navy Yard has sent out a call for electricians, electrician's helpers, laborers and electrical machinists. Longue Island yard is after cooperants and shipwrights.

Girls Will Put on Show.

Members of the Girls' Service League of Newburyport will entertain the invalid men at the naval hospital tonight. They will present the cast, "The Maid and the Midday," which was given so successfully in that city recently.

Where Do We Fit?

Once more another steel from the Portsmouth navy yard will go on record and by more than one employee of the yard. The steel was not a surprise. This time it's the hospital ship, Comfort which was to return to the local yard for repairs, but is now scheduled for the Pacific coast.

The department says that the service of the ship is needed in the Pacific, but it's a sure guess that some navy yard needs the work and away goes the ship to France or Puget Sound. One thing is certain, the Portsmouth yard can find little comfort in the Comfort deal and the "In again, out again, away again, gone again" dialogue is finally closed.

Band Will Be With Them.

The Navy Yard band will accompany the Navy Yard baseball team to the playground this afternoon when the opening game of the Sunset League will be played against the Atlantic Shipyard team.

Reported Today.

Paymaster F. C. Bowerland, new assistant superintendent of the accounting department, reported for duty today, relieving Lieut. Comdr. Sandlin.

For Submarine Work.

Warrant Mechanist Broderick from the A-1, reported at the local yard today for duty in connection with submarine construction.

N YARD

The navy yard team in the Sunset League in the opening game tonight will be obliged to appear in a variety of uniforms owing to the failure of the makers to get the regular uniforms here until Tuesday.

Going to Great Lakes.

Miss Clara E. Lyon of Lynn, yeoman (P) attached to the Commandant's office has been transferred to the Great Lakes training station and will leave Boston on Tuesday with others from the First Naval District.

Playing This Afternoon.

The U. S. S. Southern ball team and a nine from the U. S. S. Pittsburg will fight it out on the yard diamond this afternoon in the last game of the year series between the two clubs.

Chauffeurs and Fireman.

Three chauffeurs and one fireman were called in the Industrial Department today.

POLICE FIND MAN DEAD IN DOORWAY

Had Atlantic Badge and Thought to Be Enrico Soini of 18 Deer St.

Patrolman Brady of station 10, found a man dead in the doorway of a house at 18 Deer street, Charlestown, early Sunday morning. A badge marked "Atlantic Company 415" was found in his pocket, another "Coleman Brothers, 2713."

According to the record kept at the Atlantic Company at Freeman's Poll the badge bearing the letter "Y" and "D" was issued to a workman named Enrico Soini with an address at 18 Deer street at the time. He left the Atlantic yard on Feb. 15, 1919, and no other information is obtainable about him at present. He is about 35 years of age, five feet six inches, described as weighing about 150 pounds, has grey hair and mustache. He wore a blue neck coat and black vest and white striped trousers.

There were a good number of members of the Portsmouth County Knights of Columbus who went to Manchester on Sunday for a meeting and banquet of the Manchester Council.

A BOLD DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

A daring daylight break was made on Memorial Day afternoon at the home of Mr. James Schurman on Middle road. The family were out for the parade and during this time, a chief climbed on to the veranda, cut the screen off one of the windows and ransacked the room.

He forced open a desk and stole a gold watch and a can of money. He apparently did not hurry to search the rest of the house. This window by which he entered was directly in sight of the road, with the heavy auto traffic that prevailed during that day. The break was not discovered until the family returned home and reported to the police.

SUNDAY TRAVEL VERY HEAVY

The automobile travel on Sunday was reported as the heaviest so far this season. Two things contributed to this, the exceptional pleasant weather, and the fact that people were returning from a three days holiday trip. Memorial Day falling on Friday hundreds of people took the time for a three days trip to the fishing grounds or to their camps, and they all returned on Sunday. There is every indication that the automobile traffic this summer will be the greatest in the history of the auto trade.

THUMBNAIL THEOLOGY

"I believe in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man; I believe the Jesus, the Son of Mary, the Master of His Obedience, was our Elder Brother; I believe that the Scriptures are the expression of man's idea of God; I believe that man's idea of God is progressive; and I have hopes that eventually God may become human; I believe that it is every man's duty to promote the happiness of others; I believe that in so doing one can best serve God, and stand the best show of getting a little happiness for himself; I believe in several other things, but the modern interpretation of Christianity is not one of them."—Clarke's Commentaries.

It seems that the critics have at last awakened to the possibility that the utterances of the "Old Man" may not be as one having authority, and he has been informed that his conduct in church was reprehensible in that it disturbed others and did not show proper respect for the house of God. I regret exceedingly that any one could be disturbed by a "Small Boy" calling a bit of candy. If the fastidious ones had been paying proper attention to the services they could not have known what we were doing. —I did not realize that a straight jacket was a necessary adjunct in the worship of God in the twentieth century, nor can I see that our conduct in any way manifested preference for the dwelling place of our Father.

It was through no desire of mine that we are church attendants, and any desire we might have acquired in that direction has been most effectually dissipated by the receptions recorded us in most of the churches we have visited. In order to be with my boy one day in seven, the only day available, I consented, much against my will, to go with him to church and Sunday school. Neither of us wanted to go. Both of us would rather go to the samples of Christian charity which we encountered on our Sabbath journeys and I hereby petition this Board of Managers of the institution of which the boy is an inmate to permit him to spend Sunday with me without requiring a penance which is extremely repugnant to both. It can do good to neither. The boy can not understand the significance of the service, and I have no desire that he should. I am satisfied with the religion I have, and if through our mutual love and desire to be with each other we are compelled to suffer the institution of an undesired punishment in words of Gail of old, "My punishment is greater than I can bear." My hearts desire and prayer to God is that I may be enabled to make the boy and others happier, but I see no comfort or joy in continued attendance where we are not wanted and where we do not want to be. There is more real religion in my contracted quarters when the boy and I come together in love for each other than can be found in most churches, and I feel sure that God does not feel "pissed" because we are happiest when we are not in church.

"The Old Man" does not purpose making any apologies for God. Like South Carolina He needs none. Nor does he intend to make excuses for including the Almighty in the list of his personal acquaintances. The "Old Man" is perfectly satisfied with his friends as far as he has progressed in the acquisition of friends. His only regret is that he has so few that will grade up with the Almighty on the scale of desirability. If "Agnostic" has not been introduced to our Common Father it is that unknown gentleman's fault and argues himself unknown. Furthermore, these thumbnail sketches were not written with controversial intent and it is a matter of complete indifference to the writer whether they meet with the approval of "Agnostic" or Professor Anyonelse. I do my own thinking and if I know God it is my own affair and if "Agnostic" does not know God, neither God nor myself will lose any sleep over the matter.

The writer has had a good deal of fun in preparing these brief explications of his personal ideas of what should constitute theology. He has been wholly regardless of the opinions of others, and that is still his attitude. As my boy does not fear but loves me, even so I love and not fear God, nor do I shrink from the censure of man. That simply amuses. The reading public will now kindly consider the benediction as having been said.

HOLD THREE MEN FOR ASSAULT ON KITTERY GIRL

Avis Adams Tells Startling Story to the Court—Her Assaultants Held in $5000 Each for Supreme Court

As a result of the midnight roundup by the Kittery officers in Ogunquit, Wells, Kennebunk and York, Saturday morning, the three men who are alleged to have brutally assaulted a Kittery schoolgirl in the York woods, Thursday night, were arraigned in the Kittery municipal court at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon before Judge Justice Henry Shaw.

Deputy Sheriff James K. Boardman and Officer George E. Smart of Kittery had to make a couple of trips through the town to get the men wanted for the crime charged. The assault had worked on the case about all day Friday, and it was not until well into the night that all of the evidence wanted could be got, and Judge Shaw was called up at midnight for warrants for two of the men, after the first had been landed in the Kittery jail.

The men who are charged with having committed this depraved offense against this fourteen years old North Kittery girl are Angeline L. Moulton, otherwise known as "Angie" Moulton, a young man of perhaps twenty years, and Floyd E. Strickland, aged sixteen and Irving W. Strickland, a brother, aged about twenty-one, married and all of Ogunquit. Pleas of not guilty were entered in each case.

All three men are employed at the Portsmouth Navy Yard, and according to the story told by the girl in court Saturday, the men took her in on the state road, on their way to Ogunquit, Thursday afternoon, while she was returning from the Shapleigh school, several miles away from her home. Her home is near what has for some time been known as the old Johnson farm, on the state road to York.

Instead of allowing the girl to get out of the auto when they passed her home, the men continued to speed toward York, and sometime later, before six o'clock, as the girl said she remembered, they took her to a field somewhere within sight of York beach, but after they had passed the beach, and there in a spot some distance from the highway, all the three men assaulted her.

After this she got into the automobile, and the men took her somewhere they got some food, some sandwiches, and then brought her to Portsmouth, and took her to the pictures in a local theatre, not stopping at her home on the way back to Portsmouth, and she said the men made no reply to her request to get out and go home.

The men carried her back to Ogunquit after being in this city, and again passed the girl's house for the third time, without allowing her to get out of the machine.

All of the remainder of the night she stayed in the machine, with the exception of a short while, she got out and tried to sleep on the grass near the machine, but it was so wet and cold that she was so uncomfortable, she went back into the machine, with Floyd Strickland and Moulton.

Shortly after sunrise the men started back to Kittery with the girl, and then left her at her home after the parents of the child had passed a night of anxiety about the absence of their child.

The mother first gave her testimony and told of the condition of the child. The mother said she could only scream at first at the appearance of the child. The little girl was black with some sort of grime and dirt. Her clothing was in frightful condition. All the girl's clothing she wore that day to school, except her corsets and shoes, were brought to court in a bundle and put in as evidence.

The mother gave the child a warm bath and put her to bed, and as soon as possible thereafter the child was taken to Judge Shaw's, where she told what she was able to, of what had happened to her.

There was a stiff legal battle in the court over the hearing before Judge Shaw, and it was decided that the cases should be tried separately. County Attorney Franklin H. Chesley of Saco and Hon. Anson H. Cole of Kittery, attorneys, engaged by the child's father to assist appeared for the state, while Moulton was represented by Robert B. Seidel, Esq., of Biddeford, and Ray P. Hanson, Esq., of Ogunquit; and Attorney Arthur E. Sewall of this city appeared for the two Stricklands.

The telling of story by the girl took probably two hours, and she was subjected to the most severe kind of cross-examination. She told her story slowly, Judge Shaw had to urge her several times to tell exactly what happened, as best she could, and to tell the truth.

After a very brief summary by the attorneys, Mr. Seidel for the respondent, Moulton in the first case, and by Mr. Chesley for the state, the defense not having put in any evidence, Judge Shaw said he must certainly find probable cause, which he did without further comment, and ordered Moulton to appear at the next term of the Supreme Judicial Court at Alfred in September, putting the bail at $5000. Bail was furnished by Owen P. Cole and James P. Poor of Ogunquit.

At the close of this case, the attorneys asked the court to fix bail in the two cases of the Stricklands, and the same amount was adhered to. The parents of the two respondents were acceptable in the county attorney, and they gave their names as William E. and Lila M. Strickland, of Ogunquit.

There was a fourth man in the automobile when the girl was picked up on the road, Thursday night, but he was not apparently implicated in the alleged assault on the girl, because he left the machine somewhere in York.

The entire testimony of the girl was taken down by a stenographer for the use of the defense. The Kittery court room would not hold all who tried to crowd in to hear the girl's story. Her clothing appeared to be one of the most astonishing exhibits ever brought into the court.

POLICE COURT

Judge Guptill heard the following cases in the municipal court today:

William A. Butler, charged with assault on a boy named Lueker at Atlantic Heights, pleaded not guilty. The court on the testimony of the lad ordered Butler to serve 90 days in jail and pay costs of $6.81. He appealed and bail was set at $200.

Michael Chronsky, a stranger to the court, paid $11.82 for intoxication. James Taylor for non-support on complaint of his wife, had a choice of paying $7 per week or taking six months in jail. He agreed to remit the $7 every pay day.

The Test of Civilization.

They go together—good furniture and good citizenship. Furniture is the chief item in man's environment. From the cradle to the grave his comfort, happiness and point of view are conditioned upon the furniture with which he surrounds himself. He is dependent upon his chair, his table, his bed and—not only does he create those things—he also in turn is created by them—they influence his mood, mould his thought, develop or retard his energies and profoundly affect his character.

Remove furniture from the world and civilization would go with it. Remove all the ugly and unworthy furniture—what Carlyle called "the cheap and nasty products of low commercial standards"—and civilization would move forward incredibly. Men will live up—or down, as the case may be—to his environment.

This store endeavors to elevate the standard of good living.

You get a very satisfactory amount of mileage out of our fashionable shoes!

THE EDUCATOR—The Only Shoe for Children.

When an automobilist purchases a tire, the first thing he wants to know is how much mileage he's going to get out of it. That's the sort of question a sensible man should go into when he's buying a pair of shoes. Our shoes are comfortable and they're stylish and they're well made and we guarantee a goodly amount of happy mileage in each pair.

That's what the Educator, All America and all Rice & Hutchins' Shoes are made for. They give you the Wear and Style—All Union Made Shoes.
